Established in 1969 by the late Alois Hoffman in honor of his wife, this award is presented each year to the junior who, by nomination and vote of the faculty and members of the junior class, has exhibited evidence of academic interest and effort, and an outstanding response to the opportunities to serve others in the university community and society. This award is partially funded by the Helen and Melvin Hack Award.

FRANCIS J. O'CONNOR MEMORIAL AWARD

Since 1935 the O'Connor Award has been recognized as the most prestigious honor bestowed upon a Clarke University graduating senior. Criteria for the award include demonstrated leadership, cooperation, generosity, kindness, and academic achievement. Originally, the Mary Agnes O'Connor Award was established by the late Frank A. O'Connor in memory of his wife. In 1991 it was renamed the award the Francis J. O'Connor Memorial Award to honor the late Francis J. O'Connor, son of Frank and Mary Agnes O'Connor, and longtime Clarke trustee. The award recipient is selected by vote of the senior class, faculty and staff. The presentation of the award is made at commencement exercises. This award is funded by the Helen and Melvin Hack Award.

INSTALLATION OF CLARKE STUDENT ASSOCIATION OFFICERS

TORCH PASSING

The concept of torch passing originated with the ancient Greek Olympics over 2,700 years ago. During the earliest athletic competitions, relays of runners carried a sacred flame lit from the fire burning before the altar of Zeus to the location of the games.

Similarly, the Clarke Torch Passing Ceremony, initiated in 1935, recognizes the continuity in the transition of student officers, with the flame being passed from those who have served the university community for the past year to those elected to serve during the coming year.
